The roads at this time of year are decidedly bad, especially this year as we have had frequent storms and no drying weather. Then the freeze, and that keeps them in awful shape. Exhibit from Maine.

Among the exhibits at the Fruit Show at Council Bluffs, Iowa, attracting much attention is that from Maine. This exhibit came farther than any other in the show—1,800 miles. James C. True of Norway collected the exhibit, which came mostly from Oxford county. It includes twenty-eight varieties of apples, chief among which are the Baldwins, Northern Spys, Tomkins Kings, Spit-zambas, Fallwater, Westfield, Nod-head, Macintosh, Rhode Island Greening, Boxbury Russet and Goldfinger.

A pair of Maine's new shoes are part of the exhibit and lend a unique appearance to the display. The hardness of these Maine apples are their strong qualities. They also have a very fine flavor. Trees in that section of the country do not begin to bear until they are twenty-five years old. They are then good for seventy-five years.

This Maine exhibit is confined to plates, but is very nice. And its historic interest attracts many visitors for most of the people in the country came originally from the New England States. Mr. True said of the Maine land: "There one generation must plant trees for the benefit of the one to succeed. It requires patience, persistence and steadfastness of purpose not required in the western states for the production of fruit. Here the orchardist expects returns within a few years. In Maine a middle aged man scarcely expects to live to see fruit on trees which he plants."

Norway Grange.

At the meeting, Saturday, arrangements were made to furnish dinners and music for the Institute to be held here on the 26th. This Institute is open to all citizens. Kindness.

Behold the multitudes of men, in this wonderful world of ours; Who pass along Through sorrow and song Leaving weeds of flowers.

I venture to state that scarcely a man, though for itself it seem to us seeking; That hasn't within His heart a kin.

That holds kindness and love in keeping. Let us at least be more tender each one and leave only flowers on our way;

That others may know That we can bestow Both kindness and love every day.

If we know of a needy, needful of friends and longing for comfort and love; Let us tarry awhile, and give them a smile; And thank the kind Father above.

That we as his children may make men assured of the kindness bestowed us by him; And he looking down Will save us a crown.

And guide us more safely from sin. ELIZABETH HUTCHINS.

Thanksgiving Day.

The first century of colonial life saw but few stated times and days set apart for pleasure. The public celebration of the holy days of the English church was rigidly forbidden by the laws of New England. New holidays were not quickly established. The simple gathering of the community for matters pertaining to the church and the state, took their place for a time.

The hatred was universal regarding the "wanton Bacchanalian Christmas masses" which were spent throughout the year, according to Cotton was spent in "revelling, doing, carding, masking, mumming, consumed in com-potations, in interludes, in excess of wine, and in mad mirth" and the festival had ceased to be a Christmas holiday.

Little is known about the first Pilgrim Christmas and its observances. This story is told which gives a true light regarding the use of Christmas. Gov. Bradford records "Ye 25 day, began to erect ye first house for common use to receive them and their goods," and on the following Christmas states that some new company arrived themselves from work that day and giving for their reason that it went against their consciences. The governor replied that he would spare them until they were better informed. Upon returning at noon and finding them playing pitch-the-bar and other games, he told them that it was against his conscience that they should play while others worked, and made them cease playing their games. Since then this day's observance has been greatly altered and changed.

Thanksgiving, which is commonly regarded as being a distinctive New England festival was not originally a New England custom, although as we regard the day in the manner in which it was founded by our forefathers, to take the place of some meaningless celebration, it was, in this light, purely a day of Thanksgiving founded by the New England Pilgrims.

In Europe, before the Reformation, certain days were set apart for thanksgiving and were in use by Protestants more especially in the Church of England. The idea of setting apart a certain time for thanksgiving naturally came to the minds of the Pilgrims at this time of prosperity when far from their native land, and after a long and continuous struggle for existence.

The first New England Thanksgiving was not a day of religious observance, but a time of recreation, although it is probable that there were services held of a true thanksgiving nature.

Edward Winslow, in giving an account of the first Thanksgiving, to a friend in England, wrote: "Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling that so we might after a special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruits of our labors. They for four days were entertained and feasted, and they went out and killed five deer which they brought and bestowed on our governor, and upon the captains and others."

Wild turkeys were very plentiful in New England and without a doubt roast turkey was among the viands at the festival.

There were only 55 Pilgrims to observe this thanksgiving aside from the 90 Indian friends who joined them. Pilgrims that first Thanksgiving day, the Pilgrims with a few cannon, and waiters in buff breeches, and waiters in coats, the great company of Indians in holiday paint, feathers and furs; the four over-worked, homesick women in simple gowns, and the little handful of children, and this forms a sharp contrast with the Thanksgiving of the later days.

Thanksgiving day was not observed at any special appointed time but whenever the governor chose to set apart a certain day. In 1677 the first regular thanksgiving proclamation was printed. During the first 200 years Thanksgiving day was only a New England holiday, but now it has become one of the most celebrated holidays of the year and is observed from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Dead Near the Railroad Track.

The woman found dead near the Boston & Maine track at Deering Junction Saturday morning with her infant son by her side, has been identified as Mrs. Joseph Warren of Rumford Falls. Joseph Warren works in the paper mill.

The couple had been living in that place about a year and Mrs. Warren was returning from a visit to her old home. Price Edwards island with her little son, when her life was thus mysteriously snuffed out.

The baby, which is but 20 months old, was placed at the temporary home and the husband informed of the terrible tragedy that has come into his life.

The body was discovered about 6 o'clock Saturday morning lying on the West-bound track of the Boston & Maine railroad, near Reed street. The woman is about 35 years of age and was accompanied by a child which was fortunately escaped serious injuries.

The theory is that the woman thought she had passed the station where she wished to stop and in attempting to leave the moving train felt underneath and thus met her death. The woman's body and the child were first noticed by Conductor H. A. Wright of a train passing the spot later.

Does Not Stimulate

Ayer's Sarsaparilla does not stimulate. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. It is not a strong drink. No reaction after you stop using it. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. You have the steady, even gain that comes from a strong tonic and alternative. We wish you would ask your doctor about this. He knows. Trust him. Do as he says. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

What are Ayer's Pills? Liver Pills. How long have they been sold? Nearly sixty years. Do doctors recommend them? Ask your own doctor and find out.

BETHEL.

Joseph L. Oliver, who died after a long illness on Nov. 2, was over 72 years old, having been born June 1, 1838. He was born and lived all his life on the farm which had been held before him by his father and grandfather and which had been the home of the Olivers for over 100 years.

Mr. Oliver was a man of strong convictions and was held in esteem by his fellow townsmen. When the Civil War came, moved by patriotic desire to serve his country, Mr. Oliver enlisted and did his best to preserve the Union.

All of his life he was a staunch Republican. For two years Mr. Oliver had been in failing health but he courageously kept about and superintended the work upon his farm until the end. It was not until a week before his death that he finally gave up his fight and acknowledged that his condition was serious, although during all of this time he had suffered much from bronchitis and heart trouble which ultimately resulted in his death.

Mr. Oliver is survived by a widow and a daughter, Mrs. Harold L. Powers, who will continue for a time at least to live on the old homestead.

J. S. Burbank is in Upton with D. E. Dueser and party from South Paris, hunting.

Rev. J. H. Little was called to Middle Intervale to attend the funeral of Joseph Oliver, Nov. 4, at his home. Last Sunday he was called to Bryant's Pond to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lydia C. Powers. The service was in the Universalist church.

The series of meetings in the Universalist church last week were well attended and the sermons by Rev. Markley Temple and Hoyt were worth going a long distance to hear. At the close of the last meeting there was a general wish that there might be more such meetings.

The chicken pie supper at the Universalist church, Friday evening, was advertised by a few posters, the work of Mrs. J. S. Burbank, and besides the plain announcement of the supper, a number of fowls and chickens were represented at the bottom of the posters, looking up at their fate and the fate of their mates. To say that the posters attracted attention is a mild statement of a large fact. The supper was a great success.

Last Friday morning the descending mist of the night before made an icy covering on sidewalks and trees making the walking exceedingly treacherous and slippery. It required considerable skill for one to keep an upright position on his way to the place of business, and lucky were they who did not have an invitation to sit down in the street or on the sidewalk, and the invitation was so pressing that some could not resist the temptation. The clouds rolled away, the sun shone out warm and by noon the coating of ice had disappeared.

The wedding of Carter-Capen reminds the writer of their good schoolmate, a deportment in the school-room, some years ago in 1887, with the name of Edward M. Carter, 12 years of age; and also in another place the name of Fannie Capen, age 14, private school. The best of wishes and love to their abode at Willow Brook Farm, at Middle Intervale.

AMAZING EXHIBITION

By the New York Specialist at their office in the Parlors of Beal's Hotel, Norway. The New York Specialist gave a Wonderful Exhibition with Radium and the X-Ray machine.

The people who took advantage of the invitation extended by the noted Specialist to the public, to see for themselves the wonders of the X-Ray last Friday and Saturday night, were very fortunate indeed.

That the Doctor can see into and through the human body is no longer a matter of doubt. The Doctor proceeded, the exhibition by a few remarks explanatory of the subject and the treatment of the disease, or which they make a specialty, stating the marvelous strides which have been recently made in the treatment of diseases, until now incurable, are now being restored to health by specialists in New York city. He explained that they have brought these advantages to our very doors that those who would might be saved from suffering and rescued from death.

The guests were invited into their treating room, where the great machine was with many a whirl and flash generating great quantities of that wonderful fluid that makes not only the planets move and machinery too, but causes the plants to grow and the flesh and strength of health to follow the incubus of disease. And there by the aid of the mysterious green light that glowed in majesty and might the inmost secrets of the human frame were forced to reveal themselves.

It was with a curious sensation that one looks at his own bones in his hand or arm and criticizes their contour and articulation. It causes one to reflect that our bodies are but mere machines easy to get out of order and easy to put in order if the right means are used, and then when one studies the throbbing heart, the expanding lung, the stomach, the kidneys, the spine, we realize how foolish has been the knowledge that depended upon thumping and listening and feeling as practiced by the good old doctors years ago.

Their success with their patients has been little less than miraculous, and we hear good words for them from every side.

They have decided to repeat their public exhibition next Friday night, Nov. 18th, at eight o'clock, at their office in Beal's Hotel. At the conclusion they gave a demonstration of the method of giving the high potential current for the cure of diseases explaining the different manner used for different diseases—the electric bath, as it is called, although there is no water, by which the person becomes so highly filled with electricity that he would emit sparks from every extremity; the electric spray, spark and douch; and each one who tested them went away with a strange feeling of buoyancy, elasticity and strength that was very pleasant and surprising to themselves.

At one of their demonstrations a man who had been crippled on crutches for years received a spark treatment, and just the nerve power that was wanting was restored and he walked away a very happy man, carrying his crutches with him.

The bath and spray is used especially to restore the equilibrium to the nervous system and increase nutrition in persons suffering from nervous prostration, debility, insomnia and wasting diseases.

The beneficial effect is immediate, the cure is rapid and permanent.

Rheumatism, neuralgia, lame back, kidney and liver diseases recover in a strange manner under this potent spark and gentle breeze. The most timid and nervous ones enjoy the treatment.

There is another method by which tumors and various unhealthy growths are made to shrivel up and be absorbed.

Their office days are Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week. Hours 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 4 and 7 to 8 p. m., consultation being free, therefore enabling the poor as well as the rich to obtain their valuable services free.

Those who are unable to call in person should send for one for circular, and self examining blanks and learn just what their diseases are and what to do to be cured if curable. Address, with stamp, the Electro Medical Specialist, Norway, Me.

Fire Department Building.

The Hook and Ladder Company commenced the erection of their new building last Wednesday, and in spite of stormy weather Monday night witnessed the completion of the carpenter work. It is a substantial, well finished structure, 30 feet long by 8 feet in width. The walls are of well seasoned planed matched pine boards, and the square pitch roof is covered with a good quality of shingles.

As any volunteer workman as could be employed gave their services to the cause and all are gratified at the results of their joint efforts to secure such efficient means of protection against fire losses as the citizens are able to furnish under present circumstances.

The building is located on the east bank of the stream, opposite W. W. Watson's mill.

It is to be painted in some dark color, and will be soon equipped with two good ladders of different lengths, and all other necessary implements for use in case of fire.

It is but just to acknowledge that it is to the forethoughtfulness and public spirit of two or three villagers ladies that the movement to carry this enterprise to a finish is to be credited. But it is no less creditable to the readiness with which their call for aid was cordially responded to by the citizens of this community, that so good a result has been realized.

Col. A. S. Hapgood is cleaning up a tract of land which was years ago, an orchard, but is overgrown with large trees and bushes. His object is to save a thrifty crop of young pines and give them a chance to grow into reliable timber size, which they will do if properly cared for.

It is an interesting sight to observe the large areas of land in Waterford which a generation or two ago were in cultivated fields or pastures, now covered with a thick growth of stalwart pine trees, many large enough for big saw logs. There is a brisk rivalry among the timber fanciers for ownership of such lots of timber. A. G. Morse, Esq., is one of the largest owners of that kind of property, and is doubtless destined to become a millionaire.

The Famous Rayo

Does Not Strain the Eyes

Don't use a small, concentrated light over one shoulder. It puts an unequal strain on your eyes. Use a diffused, soft, mellow light that cannot flicker, that equalizes the work of the eyes, such as the Rayo Lamp gives, and avoid eye strain.

The Rayo is designed to give the best light, and it does.

It has a strong, durable shade-holder that is held firm and true. A new burner gives added strength. Made of solid brass and finished in nickel. Easy to keep polished. The Rayo is low priced, but no other lamp gives a better light at any price.

Getting Ready for the Show.

Not much use to send your bird to the poultry show unless it is in prime condition. This means that not only must the bird be well fed, plump and in good health, but that its plumage, beak, legs and feet must be up to the mark.

The birds must first be washed. Pour into a tub water of a temperature of about 90 degrees and to a depth of eight or ten inches; into another tub the same amount of water ten degrees cooler, and then a third still lower in temperature by ten degrees. A small amount of bluing should be added to the water of the last tub.

Immerse the bird in the first water, loosening the feathers with the fingers gently and rub a good quality of soap into them. Never rub the feathers the wrong way, but always from the skin outward. The wings should be spread out and well washed.

After the bird has had a good washing, rinse it in the second water and then in the third. When the feathers have been thoroughly rinsed, go over the bird with a sponge, remove all superfluous water and then dry with a soft towel.

In washing the bird, a soft tooth-brush should be used to remove the dirt around the comb, under the throat and from the legs and feet.

When the bird is thoroughly dry, the legs should be rubbed with a little vaseline or alcohol and sweet-oil, and just before being placed in a "show" coop, the legs and feet should be again dressed and the feathers be well but gently brushed with a soft brush, beginning at the head and going all over the body to the tail and feet.

A bird treated in this manner will present a wonderfully changed appearance, although before washing you may think it looks well enough to go to any show. The water in the first and second tubs will quickly disclose how dirty the bird really was.

WEST LOVELL.

A Deadly Weapon.

Byron C. McAllister shot a deer Thursday with a Springfield army gun. This gun was carried three years in the Civil War by his uncle, Weeman McAllister and consequently nearly fifty years old. This shooting was not so extraordinary only that he could not find the mounds to run bullets, and his Yankee ingenuity suggested him to run them in an iron ferrule from the butt of a fawblade whip stock, plugging one end with a stick to keep the lead in.

The result gave him square ended plugs instead of bullets, but only one was sufficient to hit and kill the deer.
